MEDICAL LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, INC.

AND THE
FRIENDS OF THE ARMY MEDICAL LIBRARY
Washington, D. C.

(Remarks by Colonel Jones)

GENERAL KIRK, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Although this seems to be my day, it would be far easier, I can assure you, for me to make remarks about a likeness of somebody else. Without attempting to appraise this portrait which is to hang upon the wall, let me voice my thanks for Dr. Seidell's generosity and the kindness of the many friends of the Library.

All of us would like to be immortal. Gray asks, in his Elegy, "Can storied urn or animated bust, back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?" but he said no word for the portrait. The portrait is, however, an approach to immortality that is not unpleasing to achieve, and it must be confessed that I cherish a certain craving to be remembered. Now for a time, at least, I can look down upon the activities of the Library with a friendly eye.

This is an appropriate occasion to say a few words concerning our microfilm service. It had its birth more than three years ago and the veteran Draeger camera, which began the work, is still doing duty. It is gratifying to realize how far our assistance has gone, in various parts of the world, since that time. Our belief that film service is firmly linked to library loan service, is somewhat novel, but in years to come, such a view may become well established. We do not know the future of photoduplication, but we do know that in its rendering of prompt reference service wherever the scientist or medical man may call for it, in unobtrusive helpfulness, there is nothing quite like it. What was begun here as an experiment, has fully justified itself and I wish to congratulate the Friends of the Army Medical Library and Dr. Seidell upon their participation in this achievement. Dr. Seidell has served our institution for more than three years and he has given of his time, of his substance, and best of all, of his unquenchable spirit. He has conquered many obstacles that would appall others. If approbation goes to our film service, he should have a generous share of it, as also the head of the Service, Mr. Brinkley. I am proud of what we have done here, the staff is also, and I hope that you are, too.

Let me say that it has been gratifying to receive on this occasion so many felicitations from personal friends throughout the country from Maine to California and in the Dominion of Canada. Even the list would be too long for me to read today. Thank you for your presence and may I express again, as well as words of mine can do, a sincere appreciation, not only of the gift, but of the work of my friend, Mr. Stoll, the artist, and the kindly interest of all those whose thoughtfulness made possible an expression of esteem which I hope some day to earn.

It gives me great pleasure to introduce Mr. Rolf Stoll and Mrs. Stoll who have been courageous enough to make the journey to Washington to attend the presentation of the portrait. Mr. Stoll is a widely known and a most distinguished artist of Cleveland, Ohio, an instructor in the School of Art there. He has made many notable canvases. I have seen many of his portraits of university presidents and of professors, of distinguished jurists, and of beautiful women, and I consider it an honor to have sat for him. Perhaps Mr. Stoll would be willing to give us a word or two.

Mr. Stoll then responded in a few gracious words in which he expressed his pleasure in having this opportunity to paint Colonel Jones' portrait and be present at its formal presentation to the Army Medical Library.
